			justify the two distinct compilation services receiving comparable treatment in this area. Accordingly, we do not support the Accounting and Review Services Committee (ARSC) proposal to not require accountants to obtain written representations from management when compiling prospective information. Among other requirements, Appendix B of the AICPA’s extant standard AT Section 301, Financial Forecasts and Projections, indicates practitioners compiling prospective financial statements should: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1) Establish an understanding with the client regarding the services to be performed, 2) Inquire about the accounting principles used in the preparation for prospective financial statements, 3) Inquire how the responsible party identifies key factors, and develops assumptions, 4) Obtain or develop a list of the responsible party’s significant assumptions regarding the prospective financial statements, and consider whether there are any obvious omissions,

However, we believe the inherent estimated nature of prospective financial statements, and the minimal support for significant assumptions without obtaining the client’s representations, justifies requiring that the responsible party’s written representations are obtained. Further, we recommend that the written representations should be obtained at the conclusion of the engagement. We noted that the proposal states that the engagement letter provides, in substance, the same acknowledgement (representations) as required by AT section 301. However we are concerned that any acknowledgements or representations embedded within the written understanding with the client (engagement letter) could later be found to be inconsistent with the final compilation, as assumptions often change over the course of an engagement. We recognize that the ARSC does not consider engagement risk when setting standards. It is our opinion, based upon our collective experience, that not requiring written representations in a compilation of prospective financial information would present considerably greater risk to a CPA. We understand that under this proposal, CPAs could elect to obtain written representations. However, we believe that as a practical matter many CPAs would likely choose not to do so. Prospective financial statements generally create additional exposure. Users of prospective financial statements may allege the CPA was negligent in assessing the reasonableness of the significant assumptions underlying the prospective financial statements. Accordingly, we believe that not obtaining written representations would be offered as evidence to support arguments that the CPA did not meet the standard of care.

3 – RSM US LLP	We agree with the conclusion reached by the Accounting and Review Services Committee (ARSC) that a requirement to obtain written representations is inconsistent with an engagement in which the accountant is not required to obtain any assurance.	7 - CAMICO	CAMICO does not agree with the ARSC conclusion that requiring accountants to obtain written representations is inconsistent with engagements in which the accountant is not required to obtain assurance. Unlike historic financial statement engagements, prospective financial statements require management

			to make significantly greater assumptions and take on more responsibilities. We agree that management’s acknowledgment of its responsibility for the significant assumptions is an important element of the written representations required by extant AT Section 301, Financial Forecasts and Projections. In our experience, assumptions could change dramatically over the course of the engagement. As such, the assumptions embedded within the engagement letter signed when engaged to compile the prospective information could differ significantly from those used at the conclusion of the engagement. We are fearful that eliminating the requirement to obtain updated assumptions and representations would unnecessarily increase accountants’ risk exposure with these engagements. Additionally, not requiring the updated assumptions and representations at the conclusion of the engagement could mislead responsible parties and other users of the compiled prospective information that the accountant has determined the client’s representations are accurate and reasonable. Given the inherent differences in the

			nature of prospective financial statements as compared to historical financial statements, CAMICO supports the procedures as outlined in Appendix B of extant AT Section 301, which include significantly more steps than compilations of historical statements. In CAMICO’s opinion, however, the additional procedures increase the likelihood accountants will identify issues and discrepancies regarding the responsible party assumptions detailed in the engagement letter. As such, we strongly encourage the ARSC to require (or at least presumptively require) accountants compiling prospective financial information obtain updated written representations and detailed assumptions from responsible parties prior to concluding the engagement. Moreover, CAMICO considers obtaining written representations at the conclusion of engagements to be strong risk management. This step provides members with adequate protection against potential allegations that their work did not meet the standard of care by not obtaining appropriate documentary evidence regarding the responsible party’s

6 – Grant Thornton LLP	With regard to the Committee’s specific request for comment pertaining to the decision to not require written representations, we agree with Committee’s conclusion and basis therefor. Because of the nature of engagement, we believe obtaining written representations is unnecessary.
8 – AICPA Technical Issues Committee	TIC agrees that obtaining a representation letter from the responsible party should not be a required procedure in a compilation of PFI engagements... When the accountant is not obtaining or providing assurance on the PFI, TIC believes the engagement letter, which management signs before the engagement begins, and the new assertion in the accountant’s report that is made at the end of the engagement represent sufficient documentation of management’s responsibilities.

Proposed SSARS, Compilation of Prospective Financial Information

2	General	7 – CAMICO	CAMICO supports the position of the Auditing Standards Board and ARSC to prohibit the review of prospective financial statements.		NO
3	.1	7 – CAMICO	CAMICO supports the proposed SSARS Compilation of Prospective Financial Information being applicable to accountants engaged (e.g., hired) to compile prospective financial information.		NO
4	.10b and .10c	8 – TIC	Paragraph 10b of the compilation of PFI proposal states that one of the preconditions for acceptance of a compilation engagement of PFI is that “a description of the limitations on the usefulness of the presentation” should be disclosed. TIC has two separate comments relating to this subparagraph. First, the language in paragraph 10b implies the description of the limitations on the usefulness of the presentation is applicable to both forecasts and projections. Based on the discussion in paragraphs 8.29P and 10.11P of the Guide and AT-C 305.11(b) and .29(c), TIC believes this is incorrect. These paragraphs are		NO

			italicized in the Guide, meaning that the disclosure pertains only to projections. TIC recommends paragraph 10b be revised as follows: A description of the limitations on the usefulness of the presentation, if the prospective financial information is a projection. [Proposed new language is underlined.] Alternatively, paragraphs 10b and 10c could be combined under one sub-bullet, since both relate to projections only. TIC also believes that a similar requirement should be added for partial presentations. See paragraph 23.14 in the PFI Guide and AT-C 305.11(c) and .37. Second, “the description of the limitations on the usefulness of the presentation” is not a concept that is well understood. Many may believe that the usefulness of the presentation is limited because the projected results may not be achieved. However, TIC believes this is not what the Guide intended. After careful reading of the illustrative language in paragraph 8.29P and in the illustrative financial projection on page 90, TIC believes the description of the limitations on the usefulness of the presentation is a statement that follows the description of the special purpose of the projection and should say:

			Accordingly, this projection may not be useful for other purposes. Although TIC assumes this is the intended purpose for the requirement, this concept is less than obvious in the Guide. TIC therefore recommends that ARSC consider whether the above sentence is meant to satisfy the requirement for a description of the limitation on the usefulness of the projection and, if so, include the sentence as an example in the application material of the final SSARS.
5	Engagement letter (paragraph .13)	8 – TIC	AT 301.69.5(i), Appendix B, which includes compilation procedures for PFI, currently requires the representation letter to include the responsible party’s written assertion, to the best of its knowledge and belief, that the forecast/projection presents the expected financial position, results of operations and cash flows for the period and that the forecast/projection reflects its judgment, based on present circumstances, of the expected conditions and its expected course of action. However, there is no current requirement in AT 301 to include a similar assertion in the compilation report. The proposed SSARS on the compilation of PFI would change the compilation report to include an assertion by management about the accuracy of the presentation. TIC agrees with the change, but believes it is significant enough to warrant further amendments to the engagement letter in the proposed compilation SSARS. In the proposed engagement letter		NO

			requirements, management would have to agree that it is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of the forecast or projection and would have to agree to disclose significant assumptions. However, the proposed engagement letter never tells management that its assertion (i.e., that the forecasted financial statements present, to the best of its knowledge and belief, the expected financial position, results of operations, and cash flows) will appear in the compilation report. At a minimum, the Our Report section of the engagement letter should mention that the above language will appear in the report. TIC believes such disclosure in the engagement letter would be consistent with AR-C 80.10(f), which requires the engagement letter on the compilation of historical financial statements to include the “expected form and content of the accountant’s compilation report...” Amendments to the Management Responsibilities section of the engagement letter may also be desirable. Also, the assertion in the ED is shorter than the assertion that was included in AT 301 and the Guide, which included an additional representation that the PFI reflects the responsible party’s judgment, based on present circumstances, of the expected conditions and its expected course of action. TIC recommends that ARSC conform the assertion that will appear in the compilation report to the text of the assertions in extant literature.

			13(i) in terms of the responsible party’s agreement to not distribute a projection v. partial presentation to parties that are not negotiating directly with the responsible party. Paragraph 13(i) includes the requirement that the responsible party should agree to not distribute a partial presentation to “those who will not be negotiating directly with the responsible party.” However, the requirement in paragraph 13(h)(i) relating to the distribution of a projection omits the above language even though the requirement is essentially the same. TIC believes this may be an unintended omission, since paragraph 13(h)(i) was probably intended to be consistent with the language in the sample engagement letter in Illustration 2—An Engagement Letter for a Compilation of a Financial Projection. Paragraph 13(h)(i) also should be consistent with the report language for the alert that is discussed in paragraph 21. Therefore, TIC recommends that paragraph 13(h)(i) be revised as follows: If the prospective financial information is a projection, the responsible party’s agreement that the financial projection i. is not appropriate for general use and is intended solely for the information and use of [specified parties] and is not intended to be and should not be used by anyone other than those specified parties. 7	.17b and .17k	3 - RSM	The words “representations” and “represents” are used, which we believe normally are understood to mean written representations (as required in the extant standard). To provide clarification, we recommend updating the language in these paragraphs to reflect that verbal inquiries of such matters should be performed and documented.	Wording in the draft standard is appropriate.	NO
8	.17b	6 – GT	We believe the current construct of this proposed requirement is difficult to follow relative to the paragraph’s lead-in to the sub-bullets. We recommend reordering the wording as follows: b. inquire as to how the responsible party determined that the appropriate accounting principles were used in the preparation of the prospective financial information in accordance with paragraphs 6.15-6.19 of the guide if the responsible party represents that either i. for existing entities... II. for entities to be formed...	While the construct may be clearer, the reference to the guide for additional elements of the requirement makes the requirement itself less clear. 9	.17c	3 – RSM	Paragraph .17c requires the accountant to “...consider whether the responsible party has a reasonably objective basis for presenting a forecast” including consideration of whether “sufficiently objective assumptions can be developed for each key factor.” While we note that paragraph .A21 references Chapter 7 of the guide as providing more guidance as to this concept, we believe this requirement would be better understood if the term “reasonably objective basis” was defined within the text itself, with context specific to projections and forecasts,	We believe that the paragraph of the proposed clarified attestation standard that the respondent refers to is paragraph .A15 of AT-C section 305. We believe the inclusion of an application paragraph similar to paragraph 5.A14 proposed in Chapter 5 would be useful for helping the user understand the context of what a reasonably objective basis may be specific to a compilation engagement of prospective information: Paragraph 7.01P of the guide indicates that a reasonably objective basis for a forecast cannot exist if the premise on which the assumptions are based is too subjective. A forecast has to be based on a realistic premise, which has to be supportable. In contrast, the basic premise for a projection does not have to be supportable, although the hypothetical assumptions should be consistent with the purpose of the presentation. Accordingly, in a projection, the responsible party need not have a reasonably objective basis for the hypothetical assumptions. Also, we are concerned that when trying to comply with the requirement of paragraph .17c, accountants may perform procedures that are beyond those necessary for an engagement where no assurance is provided. 			a factor in supporting whether the presentation would be misleading, which is an appropriate consideration for a compilation engagement, we believe additional guidance as to the extent of any considerations or procedures to be performed would help provide clarity for users. The extant requirement in AT 301 was limited to inquiries with management regarding how assumptions were developed and consideration of whether there were any obvious internal inconsistencies or omissions in those assumptions. Therefore, guidance as to how this requirement has changed in scope, if at all, may be beneficial within an application paragraph or an authoritative guide.
10	.17f	6 - GT	We note that paragraph 5d of Appendix B of AT Section 301 refers to “obvious omissions” while the proposed paragraph 17f only refers to “omissions.” We are concerned with how broadly this proposed language could be interpreted in practice and recommend utilizing the extant language.	The ARSC intentionally omitted the term “obvious” as it felt that it was too subjective.	NO

12	.22	3 - RSM	Paragraph 22 states that when the prospective financial statements contain a range, the accountant’s compilation report should include a separate paragraph that states that the responsible party has elected to portray the expected results of one or more assumptions as a range. 13	Title Above .25	8 – TIC	This heading is used a title above paragraphs 25 and .A31 in the Compilation of PFI ED. TIC believes use of the word “modifications” should be avoided in any SSARS or proposed SSARS that relates to compilation engagements, since its use could be associated with an adverse or qualified opinion. TIC suggests the heading be replaced with two separate headings for “Reporting on Presentation Deficiencies or Omitted Disclosures” and “Reporting on Partial Presentations.”		NO
14	.25	7 - CAMICO	Paragraph 25 of the proposed standard Compilation of Prospective Financial Information precludes accountants from compiling prospective financial information that contains presentation deficiencies or omits disclosures if such deficiencies or omissions are undertaken with the intent to mislead expected users. As proposed, this prohibition would only impact those deficiencies known to be intentional. Instead, we recommend the proposed standard include language comparable to AR-C section 80, paragraph .15c, which presumptively requires accountants to propose appropriate revisions when they become aware during the engagement that the financial statements are otherwise misleading. Likewise, as with AR-C section 80, paragraph .16b, we recommend the proposed standard presumptively require accountants to withdraw and inform management of their reasons for withdrawing if management does not make the proposed revisions or disclosures, and the accountants determine disclosing	While the proposed revision has merit, it would not be to the proposed paragraph as that paragraph resides in a section of the proposed standard dealing with modifications to the accountant’s report. TIC believes the new SSARSs will result in a change in practice for those accountants that have performed assembly services. At a minimum, a legend would be required for all preparation (assembly) services, but the presentation would not be limited as to use. TIC requests that ARSC publicize this change and address this issue in the PFI Guide to ensure that practitioners understand how the new guidance would apply to these presentations.
9	Reference to PFI Guide	8 – TIC	TIC appreciates the Committee’s desire to create a concise, uncluttered standard for the preparation of PFI, especially since the AICPA Guide, Prospective Financial Information (the PFI Guide), for all practical purposes, has been the only resource that practitioners have needed to perform these engagements. TIC also believes that the PFI Guide should continue to be the source of comprehensive guidance on PFI engagements. However, standard-setting conventions dictate that a SSARS should be the foundation or “hook” for all of the requirements that practitioners need to follow in a standard. An AICPA guide can interpret or explain those standards but cannot set new requirements... As written, the ED is silent as to the existence of the PFI Guide. 			Performed in Accordance With Statements on Standards for Accounting and Review Services, already states that AICPA guides containing preparation, compilation or review guidance represent interpretive publications that should be considered in performing any PFI engagement, TIC believes this guidance is not enough. When a specific subject guide exists (such as the PFI Guide), it should be cited in the standard and practitioners should be reminded that it is a necessary and authoritative resource when preparing PFI. Otherwise, practitioners may not find the Guide on their own, even if they make an effort to search for an interpretive publication. Omitting the reference to the PFI Guide is also inconsistent with Statement on Standards for Attestation Engagements No. 18, Attestation Standards: Clarification and Recodification, AT-C 305, Prospective Financial Information, and the proposal on the compilation of PFI, both of which cite the PFI Guide specifically... AR-C 70 should include requirement and application paragraphs to reference the PFI Guide, which provides comprehensive preparation guidance and illustrative financial statements and effectively serves as the applicable financial reporting framework for PFI. For example, preparation of budgets is not mentioned as part of the scope of the proposal. As a result, practitioners might not realize that a budget can be a forecast. If practitioners are not provided essential information as to scope, it is not practical to assume that they will find it on their own. TIC also believes that practitioners need enough information in the standard to make a decision about whether they wish to accept or continue an engagement. Practitioners should not have to purchase an AICPA guide to find out whether the services they've been asked to perform meet the preconditions of the service. For all of the above reasons, TIC believes practitioners would be unable to implement the requirements for the preparation of PFI efficiently and effectively without additional information in the standard. The minimalist approach used in the PFI amendments in AR-C 70 is not user-friendly and could result in practitioners misunderstanding or overlooking the purpose and applicability of the SSARS.	Prospective financial information is defined in the proposed revision to paragraph .06 (proposed to change to .07) of AR-C section 60. Proposed revised paragraph .01 of AR-C section 70 then states that the section applies to engagements to prepare prospective financial information.	NO

For example, if the responsible party engages the practitioner to develop assumptions only without preparing the PFI or to read the PFI and propose adjustments, as needed, these would be examples of engagements that would not fall under the Preparation SSARS for PFI. The above example is somewhat similar to this example in paragraph 10.13 of the PFI Guide: ...A practitioner may be engaged to prepare a financial analysis of a potential project in which the engagement includes obtaining information, making appropriate assumptions, and assembling the presentation. Such an analysis is not, and should not be characterized as, a forecast (or projection) and would not be appropriate for general use. However, if the responsible party reviewed and adopted the assumptions and presentation, or based its assumptions and presentation on the analysis, the practitioner could compile or examine a forecast and issue a report appropriate for general use. 			Clarification Task Force Don Pallais on this matter. As written, AR-C 90 permits, but does not require, a review of specified elements, accounts or items of a financial statement to be performed under the SSARS. TIC believes this conclusion is incorrect based on the current and recently clarified attestation standards. Both extant (AT 101.01, .04) and the forthcoming clarified (AT-C 105.01, .03) attestation standards apply to all reviews except those for which standards are established by SASs and SSARSs. Thus, the applicability of the attestation standards depends on the SSARS: if SSARSs establish the standards, the attestation standards do not apply; if the SSARSs don't establish the standards, the attestation standards apply. If the SSARSs do not establish the standards applicable to reviews of elements, accounts, or items of a financial statement, the attestation standards, not SSARSs, govern. Although the two sets of review standards are similar, they are not identical, and an accountant who applies AR-C 90 as suggested in AR-C 90.01 would likely not comply with AT 101 and would be in violation of professional standards. It would unnecessarily cause an accountant to have to defend himself or herself against quality control reviewers, peer reviewers, regulators, or plaintiffs who read the standard literally. That doesn't seem to be an optimal outcome. In addition to these considerations, TIC believes that, for the sake of clarity, practitioners should not be given a choice
