Chapter 2—*Examination Engagements

Requirements	Application and Other Explanatory Material
Introduction 2.1 This chapter of Statements on Standards for Attestation Engagements (SSAEs of attestation standards) contains performance and reporting requirements and application guidance for all examination engagements. The requirements and guidance in this chapter supplement the requirements and guidance in chapter 1, “Concepts Common to All Attestation Engagements.” Effective Date 2.2 This chapter is effective for examination reports dated on or after May 1, 2017. Objectives 2.3 In conducting an examination engagement, the objectives of the practitioner are to <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a. obtain reasonable assurance about whether the subject matter as measured or evaluated against the criteria is free from material misstatement;</li> <li>b. express an opinion in a written report about whether             <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>i. the subject matter is in accordance with [or based on] the criteria, in all material respects, or</li> <li>ii. whether the assertion is fairly stated, in all material respects; and</li> </ul> </li> <li>c. communicate further as required by relevant chapters of the attestation standards.</li> </ul>
Definitions 2.4 For purposes of this chapter, the following terms have the meanings attributed as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a. Appropriateness of evidence. The measure of the quality of evidence, that is, its relevancy and reliability in providing support for the practitioner’s opinion.</li> </ul>

Chapter 2—Examination Engagements
Requirements	Application and Other Explanatory Material
b. Modified opinion. A qualified opinion, an adverse opinion, or a disclaimer of opinion c. Risk of material misstatement. The risk that the subject matter is not in accordance with [or based on] the criteria in all material respects or that the assertion is not fairly stated, in all material respects. d. Sufficiency of evidence. The measure of the quantity of evidence. The quantity of the evidence needed is affected by the risks of material misstatement and also by the quality of such evidence. e. Test of controls. A procedure designed to evaluate the operating effectiveness of controls in preventing, or detecting and correcting, material misstatements in the subject matter.
Requirements  Conduct of an Examination Engagement 2.5 In performing an examination engagement, the practitioner should comply with this chapter, chapter 1, and any subject-matter specific chapters of the attestation standards that are relevant to the engagement. A subject-matter specific chapter is relevant to the engagement when it is in effect and the circumstances addressed by the chapter exist. (Ref: par. 2.A1)	Conduct of an Examination Engagement  2.A1 For example, if a practitioner were examining prospective financial information, chapter 1, chapter 2, "Examination Engagements," and chapter 5, "Prospective Financial Information," would be relevant. (Ref: par. 2.5)
Preconditions for an Examination Engagement  2.6 Chapter 1 indicates that a practitioner must be independent when performing an attestation engagement in accordance with the attestation standards unless the practitioner is required by law or regulation to accept the engagement and report on the subject matter or assertion.<sup>1</sup> When the practitioner is not independent but is required by law or regulation to accept the engagement and report on the subject matter or assertion, the practitioner should disclaim an opinion and should specifically state that the practitioner is not independent. The practitioner is neither required to provide, nor precluded from providing, the reasons for the lack of independence; however, if the practitioner chooses to provide the reasons for the lack of independence, the practitioner should include all the reasons therefor.

Agreeing on the Terms of the Engagement 2.7 The practitioner should agree upon the terms of the engagement with the engaging party. The agreed-upon terms of the engagement should be specified in sufficient detail in an engagement letter or other suitable form of written agreement. (Ref: par. 2.A2)	Agreeing on the Terms of the Engagement 2.A2 It is in the interests of both the engaging party and the practitioner to document the agreed-upon terms of the engagement before the commencement of the engagement to help avoid misunderstandings. The form and content of the engagement letter or other suitable form of written agreement will vary with the engagement circumstances. (Ref: par. 2.7)
2.8 The agreed-upon terms of the engagement should include the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a. The objective and scope of the engagement</li> <li>b. The responsibilities of the practitioner (Ref: par. 2.A3)</li> <li>c. A statement that the engagement will be conducted in accordance with attestation standards established by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants</li> <li>d. The responsibilities of the responsible party and the responsibilities of the engaging party, if different</li> </ul> e. A statement about the inherent limitations of an examination engagement (Ref: par. 2.A4) f. Identification of the criteria for the measurement, evaluation, or disclosure of the subject matter g. An acknowledgement that the engaging party agrees to provide the practitioner with a representation letter at the conclusion of the engagement 2.9 Although an engagement may recur, each engagement is considered a separate engagement. The practitioner should assess whether circumstances require revision to the terms of a preceding engagement. If the practitioner	2.A3 A practitioner may further describe the responsibilities of the practitioner by adding the following items to the engagement letter or other suitable form of written agreement: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a. A statement that an examination is designed to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the subject matter is in accordance with [or based on] the criteria, in all material respects</li> <li>b. A statement that the objective of an examination is the expression of an opinion in a written report about whether the subject matter is in accordance with [or based on] the criteria, in all material respects or whether the assertion is fairly stated, in all material respects</li> </ul> (Ref: par. 2.8b) 2.A4 If relevant, a statement about the inherent limitations of an examination engagement may indicate that “because of the inherent limitations of an examination engagement together with the inherent limitations of internal control, an unavoidable risk exists that some material misstatements may not be detected, even though the examination is properly planned and performed in accordance with the attestation standards.” (Ref: par. 2.8e)

concludes that the terms of the preceding engagement need not be revised for the current engagement, the practitioner should remind the engaging party of the terms of the current engagement, and the reminder should be documented.
Requesting a Written Assertion  2.10 The practitioner should request from the responsible party a written assertion about the measurement or evaluation of the subject matter against the applicable criteria. The responsible party's refusal to provide a written assertion represents a limitation on the scope of the examination engagement. In such circumstances, paragraph 2.77 requires the practitioner to withdraw from the engagement when withdrawal is possible under applicable laws and regulations. (Ref: par. 2.A5–2.A7 and 2.77)	Requesting a Written Assertion 2.A5 The language of the responsible party's written assertion in paragraph 2.10 may need to be tailored to reflect the nature of the subject matter and criteria for the engagement. Examples of language that meet the requirements in paragraph 2.10 include the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The entity maintained effective internal control over the subject matter based on the criteria.</li> <li>• The subject matter is presented in accordance with [or based on] the criteria.</li> <li>• The subject matter achieved the objectives, for example, (when the objectives are the criteria).</li> <li>• The subject matter is presented fairly, based on the criteria.</li> </ul> (Ref: par. 2.10) 2.A6 Situations may arise in which the current responsible party was not present during some or all of the period covered by the practitioner's report. Such persons may contend that they are not in a position to provide a written assertion that covers the entire period because they were not in place during some or all of the period. This fact, however, does not diminish such persons' responsibilities for the subject matter as a whole. Accordingly, the requirement for the practitioner to request a written assertion from the responsible party that covers the entire relevant period(s) still applies. (Ref: par. 2.10) 2.A7 Paragraph 2.50a requires the practitioner to request a written representation from the responsible party that is the same as the responsible party's assertion. If the responsible party provides the practitioner with the written representation in paragraph 2.50a, the practitioner need not request a separate written assertion unless a separate written assertion is called for by the

	engagement circumstances. (Ref: par. 2.10)
Planning and Performing the Engagement  2.11 The practitioner should establish an overall engagement strategy that sets the scope, timing, and direction of the engagement and guides the development of the engagement plan. (Ref: par. 2.A8–2.A11)	Planning and Performing the Engagement  2.A8 Planning involves the engagement partner and other key members of the engagement team and may involve the practitioner’s specialists in developing <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• an overall strategy for the scope, timing, and conduct of the engagement and</li> <li>• an engagement plan, consisting of a detailed approach for the nature, timing, and extent of procedures to be performed.</li> </ul> Adequate planning helps the practitioner to devote appropriate attention to important areas of the engagement, identify potential problems on a timely basis, and properly organize and manage the engagement in order for it to be performed in an effective and efficient manner. Adequate planning also assists the practitioner in properly assigning work to engagement team members, and facilitates the direction, supervision, and review of their work. Further, it assists, when applicable, the coordination of work performed by other practitioners and practitioner’s specialists. The nature and extent of planning activities will vary with the engagement circumstances, for example, the complexity of the assessment or evaluation of the subject matter and the practitioner’s previous experience with it. Examples of relevant matters that may be considered include the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The characteristics of the engagement that define its scope, including the terms of the engagement, the characteristics of the underlying subject matter, and the applicable criteria</li> <li>• The expected timing and the nature of the communications required</li> <li>• The results of preliminary engagement activities, such as client acceptance, and, when applicable, whether knowledge gained on other engagements performed by the engagement partner for the appropriate party(ies) is relevant</li> <li>• The engagement process, including, possible sources of evidence, and choices among alternative measurement or evaluation methods</li> <li>• The practitioner’s understanding of the appropriate party(ies) and its (their) environment, including the risks that the subject matter may be materially misstated</li> </ul>

Chapter 2—Examination Engagements

Requirements	Application and Other Explanatory Material
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Identification of intended users and their information needs and consideration of materiality and the components of attestation risk</li> <li>• The risk of fraud relevant to the engagement</li> <li>• The effect on the engagement of using the internal audit function</li> </ul> (Ref: par. 2.11) 2.A9 The practitioner may decide to discuss elements of planning with the appropriate party(ies) to facilitate the conduct and management of the engagement (for example, to coordinate some of the planned procedures with the work of the responsible party’s personnel). Although these discussions often occur, the overall engagement strategy and the engagement plan remain the practitioner’s responsibility. When discussing matters included in the overall engagement strategy or engagement plan, care is needed in order not to compromise the effectiveness of the engagement. For example, discussing the nature and timing of detailed procedures with the responsible party may compromise the effectiveness of the engagement by making the procedures too predictable. (Ref: par. 2.11) 2.A10 Planning is not a discrete phase, but rather a cumulative and iterative process throughout the engagement. As a result of unexpected events, changes in conditions, or evidence obtained, the practitioner may need to revise the overall strategy and engagement plan and, thereby, the resulting nature, timing, and extent of planned procedures. (Ref: par. 2.11) 2.A11 In smaller or less complex engagements, the entire engagement may be conducted by a very small engagement team, possibly involving the engagement partner (who may be a sole practitioner) working without any other engagement team members. With a smaller team, coordination of, and communication among, team members is easier. Establishing the overall engagement strategy in such cases need not be a complex or time-consuming exercise; it varies according to the size of the entity, complexity of the engagement, and size of the engagement team. (Ref: par. 2.11)
2.12 In establishing the overall engagement strategy, the practitioner should a. identify the characteristics of the engagement that define its scope and

Chapter 2—Examination Engagements
Requirements	Application and Other Explanatory Material
ascertain the reporting objectives of the engagement in order to plan the timing of the engagement and the nature of the communications required; b. consider the factors that, in the practitioner’s professional judgment, are significant in directing the engagement team’s efforts; c. consider the results of preliminary engagement activities, such as client acceptance, and, when applicable, whether knowledge gained on other engagements performed by the engagement partner for the entity is relevant; and d. ascertain the nature, timing, and extent of resources necessary to perform the engagement.
2.13 The practitioner should develop a plan that includes a description of the following items: a. The nature, timing, and extent of planned risk assessment procedures b. The nature, timing, and extent of planned further procedures c. Other planned procedures that are required to be carried out so that the engagement complies with the attestation standards
Risk Assessment Procedures 2.14 The practitioner should obtain an understanding of the subject matter and other engagement circumstances sufficient to a. enable the practitioner to identify and assess the risks of material misstatement in the subject matter; and b. provide a basis for designing and performing procedures to respond to the assessed risks and to obtain reasonable assurance to support the practitioner’s opinion. (Ref: par. 2.A12–2.A13) 2.15 In obtaining an understanding of the subject matter in accordance with under paragraph 2.14, the practitioner should obtain an understanding of internal control over the preparation of the subject matter relevant to the engagement. This includes evaluating the design of those controls relevant to the subject matter and	Risk Assessment Procedures 2.A12 Obtaining an understanding of the subject matter and other engagement circumstances provides the practitioner with a frame of reference for exercising professional judgment throughout the engagement, for example, when <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• considering the characteristics of the subject matter;</li> <li>• assessing the suitability of criteria;</li> <li>• considering the factors that, in the practitioner’s professional judgment, are significant in directing the engagement team’s efforts, including situations in which special consideration may be necessary (for example, when there is a need for specialized skills or the work of a specialist);</li> <li>• establishing and evaluating the continued appropriateness of quantitative materiality levels (when appropriate) and considering qualitative materiality factors;</li> <li>• developing expectations when performing analytical procedures;</li> <li>• designing and performing procedures;</li> <li>• evaluating evidence, including the reasonableness of the written representations received by the practitioner.</li> </ul>

determining whether they have been implemented by performing procedures in addition to inquiry of the personnel responsible for the subject matter.	(Ref: par. 2.14) 2.A13 In assessing inherent risk, the practitioner may consider factors relevant to examination engagements, such as the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The complexity of the subject matter or assertion</li> <li>• The length of time during which the entity has had experience with the subject matter or assertion</li> <li>• Prior experience with the entity's assessment of the subject matter or assertion</li> </ul> (Ref: par. 2.14)
Materiality in Planning and Performing the Engagement 2.16 When establishing the overall engagement strategy, the practitioner should consider materiality for the subject matter. (Ref: par. 2.A14–2.A20)	Materiality in Planning and Performing the Engagement 2.A14 Materiality is considered in the context of qualitative factors and, when applicable, quantitative factors. The relative importance of qualitative factors and quantitative factors when considering materiality in a particular engagement is a matter for the practitioner's professional judgment. (Ref: par. 2.16) 2.A15 Professional judgments about materiality are made in light of surrounding circumstances, but they are not affected by the level of assurance; that is, for the same intended users, materiality for an examination engagement is the same as it is for a review engagement because materiality is based on the information needs of intended users and not the level of assurance. (Ref: par. 2.16) 2.A16 In general, misstatements, including omissions, are considered to be material if, individually or in the aggregate, they could reasonably be expected to influence relevant decisions of intended users that are made based on the subject matter. The practitioner's consideration of materiality is a matter of professional judgment and is affected by the practitioner's perception of the common information needs of intended users as a group. In this context, it is

Chapter 2—Examination Engagements
Requirements	Application and Other Explanatory Material
	reasonable for the practitioner to assume that intended users <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a. have a reasonable knowledge of the subject matter and a willingness to study the subject matter with reasonable diligence.</li> <li>b. understand that the subject matter is measured or evaluated and examined to appropriate levels of materiality and have an understanding of any materiality concepts included in the applicable criteria.</li> <li>c. understand any inherent uncertainties involved in measuring or evaluating the subject matter.</li> <li>d. make reasonable decisions on the basis of the subject matter taken as a whole.</li> </ol> Unless the engagement has been designed to meet the particular information needs of specific users, the possible effect of misstatements on specific users, whose information needs may vary widely, is not ordinarily considered. (Ref: par. 2.16) 2.A17 Qualitative factors may include the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The interaction between, and relative importance of, various aspects of the subject matter, such as numerous performance indicators</li> <li>• The wording chosen with respect to subject matter that is expressed in narrative form (for example, the wording chosen does not omit or distort the information)</li> <li>• The characteristics of the presentation adopted for the subject matter when the applicable criteria allow for variations in that presentation</li> <li>• The nature of a misstatement, for example, the nature of observed deviations in the operation of a control when the responsible party asserts that the control is effective</li> <li>• Whether a misstatement affects compliance with laws or regulations</li> <li>• In the case of periodic reporting on a subject matter, the effect of an adjustment that affects past or current information about the subject matter or is likely to affect future information about the subject</li> </ul>

Chapter 2—Examination Engagements

	matter <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Whether a misstatement is the result of an intentional act or is unintentional</li> <li>• Whether a misstatement is significant with regard to the practitioner’s understanding of known previous communications to users, for example, in relation to the expected outcome of the measurement or evaluation of the subject matter</li> <li>• Whether a misstatement relates to the relationship between the responsible party, and if different, the engaging party or its relationship with other parties</li> </ul> (Ref: par. 2.16) 2.A18 Quantitative factors relate to the magnitude of misstatements relative to reported amounts for those aspects of the subject matter, if any, that are <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• expressed numerically; or</li> <li>• otherwise related to numerical values (for example, the number of observed deviations in the operation of a control when the examination involves the effectiveness of the control).</li> </ul> (Ref: par. 2.16) 2.A19 When quantitative factors are applicable, planning the engagement solely to detect individually material misstatements overlooks the fact that the aggregate of individually immaterial misstatements may cause the subject matter to be materially misstated. Applying materiality to elements of the subject matter ordinarily is not a simple mechanical calculation but involves the exercise of professional judgment. It is affected by the practitioner’s understanding of the subject matter and the responsible party, updated during the performance of the risk assessment procedures, and consideration of the nature and extent of misstatements identified in previous attestation engagements. (Ref: par. 2.16)

Chapter 2—Examination Engagements

Requirements	Application and Other Explanatory Material
	2.A20 The criteria may discuss the concept of materiality in the context of the preparation and presentation of the subject matter and thereby provide a frame of reference for the practitioner in considering materiality for the engagement. Although criteria may discuss materiality in different terms, the concept of materiality generally includes the matters discussed in paragraphs 2.A14–2.A19. If the applicable criteria do not include a discussion of the concept of materiality, these paragraphs provide the practitioner with a frame of reference. (Ref: par. 2.16)
2.17 The practitioner should reconsider materiality for the subject matter if the in the event of practitioner becomes aware of information during the engagement that would have caused the practitioner to have initially determined a different materiality.
Identifying Risks of Material Misstatement  2.18 The practitioner should identify and assess risks of material misstatement as the basis for designing and performing further procedures whose nature, timing, and extent <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a. are responsive to assessed risks of material misstatement and</li> <li>b. allow the practitioner to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the subject matter is, in all material respects, in accordance with [or based on] the applicable criteria.</li> </ul> (Ref: par. 2.A21–2.A22)	Identifying Risks of Material Misstatement  2.A21 Most of the practitioner’s work in forming an opinion consists of obtaining and evaluating evidence. Procedures to obtain evidence can include inspection, observation, confirmation, recalculation, reperformance, and analytical procedures, often in some combination, in addition to inquiry. (Ref: par. 2.18) 2.A22 In some cases, a subject-matter specific chapter may include requirements that affect the nature, timing, and extent of procedures. For example, a subject-matter specific chapter may describe the nature or extent of particular procedures to be performed in a particular type of engagement. Even in such cases, determining the exact nature, timing, and extent of procedures is a matter of professional judgment and will vary from one engagement to the next. (Ref: par. 2.18)
Responding to Assessed Risks and Obtaining Evidence  2.19 To obtain reasonable assurance the practitioner should obtain sufficient appropriate evidence to reduce attestation risk to an acceptably low level and thereby enable the practitioner to draw reasonable conclusions on which to base the practitioner’s opinion. 2.20 The practitioner should design and implement overall responses to address the assessed risks of material misstatement for the subject matter or assertion. (Ref: par. 2.A23–2.A24)	Responding to Assessed Risks and Obtaining Evidence  2.A23 Overall responses to address the assessed risks of material misstatement of the subject matter or assertion may include <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• emphasizing to the engagement team the need to maintain professional skepticism;</li> <li>• assigning more experienced staff or those with specialized skills or using specialists;</li> <li>• providing more supervision;</li> <li>• incorporating additional elements of unpredictability in the selection</li> </ul>

Chapter 2—Examination Engagements
Requirements	Application and Other Explanatory Material
Further Procedures 2.21 The practitioner should design and perform further procedures whose nature, timing, and extent are based on, and responsive to, the assessed risks of material misstatement. 2.22 In designing and performing the further procedures in accordance with paragraph 2.21, the practitioner should a. consider the reasons for the assessment given to the risk of material misstatement, including i. the likelihood of material misstatement due to the particular	of further procedures to be performed; and <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• making changes to the nature, timing, or extent of procedures (for example, performing procedures at period end instead of at an interim date or modifying the nature of procedures to obtain more persuasive evidence).</li> </ul> (Ref: par. 2.20) 2.A24 The assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the subject matter or assertion is affected by the practitioner’s understanding of the control environment. An effective control environment may allow the practitioner to have more confidence in internal control and the reliability of evidence generated internally within the entity and, thus, for example, may allow the practitioner to conduct some procedures at an interim date rather than at the period end. Deficiencies in the control environment, however, have the opposite effect, for example, the practitioner may respond to an ineffective control environment by <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• conducting more procedures as of the period end rather than at an interim date,</li> <li>• obtaining more extensive evidence from procedures other than tests of controls, and</li> <li>• increasing the number of locations to be included in the examination scope.</li> </ul> (Ref: par. 2.20)

Chapter 2—Examination Engagements

characteristics of the subject matter and <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>ii. whether the practitioner intends to rely on the operating effectiveness of controls in determining the nature, timing, and extent of other procedures; and</li> <li>b. obtain more persuasive evidence the higher the practitioner’s assessment of risk.</li> </ul> 2.23 When designing and performing procedures, the practitioner should consider the relevance and reliability of the information to be used as evidence. If <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a. evidence obtained from one source is inconsistent with that obtained from another,</li> <li>b. the practitioner has doubts about the reliability of information to be used as evidence, or</li> <li>c. responses to inquiries of the responsible party or others are inconsistent or otherwise unsatisfactory (for example, vague or implausible),</li> </ul> the practitioner should determine what modifications or additions to procedures are necessary to resolve the matter and should consider the effect of the matter, if any, on other aspects of the engagement. Tests of Controls 2.24 The practitioner should design and perform tests of controls to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence about the operating effectiveness of relevant controls if <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a. the practitioner intends to rely on the operating effectiveness of controls in determining the nature, timing, and extent of other procedures;</li> <li>b. procedures other than tests of controls cannot alone provide sufficient appropriate evidence; or</li> <li>c. the subject matter is internal control.</li> </ul> 2.25 If the practitioner designed and performed tests of controls to rely on their operating effectiveness and identified deviations in those controls, the practitioner should make specific inquiries and perform other procedures as necessary to understand these matters and their potential consequences. The practitioner also should determine whether <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a. the tests of controls that have been performed provide an appropriate</li> </ul>

Chapter 2—Examination Engagements
Requirements	Application and Other Explanatory Material
basis for reliance on the controls, b. additional tests of controls are necessary, or c. the potential risks of misstatement need to be addressed using other procedures.
Procedures Other Than Tests of Controls 2.26 Irrespective of the assessed risks of material misstatement, the practitioner should design and perform tests of details or analytical procedures related to the subject matter, except when the subject matter is internal control.
Analytical Procedures Performed in Response to Assessed Risks 2.27 When designing and performing analytical procedures in response to assessed risks, the practitioner should a. determine the suitability of particular analytical procedures for the subject matter, taking into account the assessed risks of material misstatement and any related tests of details; b. evaluate the reliability of data from which the practitioner’s expectation is developed, taking into account the source, comparability, nature, and relevance of information available, and controls over their preparation; and c. develop an expectation that is sufficiently precise to identify possible material misstatements (taking into account whether analytical procedures are to be performed alone or in combination with tests of details). (Ref: par. 2.A25–2.A26) 2.28 If analytical procedures identify fluctuations or relationships that are inconsistent with other relevant information or that differ significantly from expected amounts or ratios, the practitioner should investigate such differences by a. inquiring of the responsible party and obtaining additional evidence relevant to its responses and b. performing other procedures as necessary in the circumstances.	Analytical Procedures Performed in Response to Assessed Risks 2.A25 An understanding of the purposes of analytical procedures and the limitations of those procedures is important. Accordingly, the identification of the relationships and types of data used, as well as conclusions reached when recorded amounts are compared to expectations, requires professional judgment by the practitioner. (Ref: par. 2.27) 2.A26 Analytical procedures involve comparisons of expectations developed by the practitioner to recorded amounts or ratios developed from recorded amounts. The practitioner develops such expectations by identifying and using plausible relationships that are reasonably expected to exist based on the practitioner’s understanding of the subject matter; the practices used by the responsible party to measure, recognize, and record the subject matter; and, if applicable, the industry in which the entity operates. (Ref: par. 2.27)

2.34 The practitioner’s assessment of the risks of material misstatement may change during the course of the engagement as additional evidence is obtained. In circumstances in which the practitioner obtains evidence from performing further procedures, or if new information is obtained, either of which is inconsistent with the evidence on which the practitioner originally based the assessment, the practitioner should revise the assessment and modify the planned procedures accordingly. (Ref: par. 2.A30–2.A31)	2.A30 Information may come to the practitioner’s attention that differs significantly from that on which the determination of planned procedures was based. As the practitioner performs planned procedures, the evidence obtained may cause the practitioner to perform additional procedures. (Ref: par. 2.34) 2.A31 The practitioner may become aware of a matter(s) that causes the practitioner to believe the subject matter may be materially misstated, for example, when performing analytical procedures the practitioner identifies a fluctuation or relationship that is inconsistent with other relevant information or that differs significantly from expectations. Chapter 2—Examination Engagements
Requirements	Application and Other Explanatory Material
2.45 The practitioner should accumulate misstatements identified during the engagement, other than those that are clearly trivial. (Ref: par. 2.A46–2.A47)	2.A46 Uncorrected misstatements are accumulated during the engagement for the purpose of evaluating whether, individually or in aggregate, they are material when forming the practitioner’s opinion. (See also paragraph 2.59b) (Ref: par. 2.45) 2.A47 “Clearly trivial” is not another expression for “not material.” Matters that are clearly trivial will be of a wholly different (smaller) order of magnitude than materiality and will be matters that are clearly inconsequential, whether taken individually or in the aggregate and whether judged by any criteria of size, nature, or circumstances. When there is any uncertainty about whether one or more items are clearly trivial, the matter is considered not to be clearly trivial. (Ref: par. 2.45)
2.46 The practitioner should evaluate the sufficiency and appropriateness of the evidence obtained in the context of the engagement and, if necessary, attempt to obtain further evidence. The practitioner should consider all relevant evidence, regardless of whether it appears to corroborate or to contradict the measurement or evaluation of the subject matter against the applicable criteria. (Ref: par. 2.A48–2.A52) 2.47 If the practitioner is unable to obtain necessary further evidence, the practitioner should consider the implications for the practitioner’s opinion in paragraphs- 2.67–2.82.	2.A48 Sufficient appropriate evidence is necessary to support the practitioner’s opinion and examination report. It is cumulative in nature and is primarily obtained from procedures performed during the course of the engagement. It may, however, also include information obtained from other sources such as previous engagements (provided the practitioner has determined whether changes have occurred since the previous engagement that may affect its relevance to the current engagement) or a firm’s quality control procedures for client acceptance and continuance. Evidence may come from sources inside and outside the appropriate party(ies). Also, information that may be used as evidence may have been prepared by a specialist employed or engaged by the appropriate party(ies). Evidence comprises both information that supports and corroborates aspects of the subject matter and any information that contradicts aspects of the subject matter. In addition, in some cases, the absence of information (for example, refusal by the appropriate party(ies) to provide a requested representation) is considered by the practitioner and, therefore, also constitutes evidence. (Ref: par.2.46) 2.A49 The sufficiency and appropriateness of evidence are interrelated. Sufficiency of evidence is the measure of the quantity of evidence. The quantity of the evidence needed is affected by the risks of material misstatement and also by the quality of such evidence. (Ref: par. 2.46)

Chapter 2—Examination Engagements
Requirements	Application and Other Explanatory Material
	2.A50 Appropriateness of evidence is the measure of the quality of evidence; that is, its relevance and reliability in providing support for the practitioner’s opinion. The reliability of evidence is influenced by its source and by its nature and is dependent on the individual circumstances under which it is obtained. Generalizations about the reliability of various kinds of evidence can be made; however, such generalizations are subject to important exceptions. Even when evidence is obtained from sources external to the responsible party, circumstances may exist that could affect its reliability. For example, evidence obtained from an independent external source may not be reliable if the source is not knowledgeable. Recognizing that exceptions may exist, the following generalizations about the reliability of evidence may be useful: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Evidence is more reliable when it is obtained from independent sources outside the appropriate party(ies).</li> <li>• Evidence that is generated internally is more reliable when the related controls are effective.</li> <li>• Evidence obtained directly by the practitioner (for example, observation of the application of a control) is more reliable than evidence obtained indirectly or by inference (for example, inquiry about the application of a control).</li> <li>• Evidence is more reliable when it exists in documentary form, whether paper, electronic, or other media (for example, a contemporaneously written record of a meeting is ordinarily more reliable than a subsequent oral representation of what was discussed).</li> <li>• Evidence provided by original documents is more reliable than evidence provided by photocopies, facsimiles, or documents that have been filmed, digitized, or otherwise transformed into electronic form, the reliability of which may depend on the controls over their preparation and maintenance.</li> </ul> (Ref: par. 2.46) 2.A51 Evidence obtained from different sources or of a different nature ordinarily provides more assurance than evidence from items considered

	individually. In addition, obtaining evidence from different sources or of a different nature may indicate that an individual item of evidence is not reliable. For example, corroborating information obtained from a source independent of the responsible party may increase the assurance the practitioner obtains from a representation from the responsible party. Conversely, when evidence obtained from one source is inconsistent with that obtained from another, the practitioner determines what additional procedures are necessary to resolve the inconsistency. (Ref: par. 2.46) 2.A52 Whether sufficient appropriate evidence has been obtained on which to base the practitioner’s opinion is a matter of professional judgment. (Ref: par. 2.46)
Considering Subsequent Events and Subsequently Discovered Facts  2.48 The practitioner should inquire of the responsible party, and if different, the engaging party, and apply other appropriate procedures to obtain evidence regarding events subsequent to the period (or point in time) covered by the examination engagement up to the date of the practitioner’s report that could have a significant effect on the subject matter or assertion. If the practitioner becomes aware, through inquiry or otherwise, of such an event, or any other event that is of such a nature and significance that its disclosure is necessary to prevent report users from being misled, and information about that event is not adequately disclosed by the responsible party in the subject matter or in its assertion, the practitioner should take appropriate action. (Ref: par. 2.A53–2.A55)	Considering Subsequent Events and Subsequently Discovered Facts 2.A53 For certain subject-matter chapters of the attestation standards, specific subsequent events requirements and related application guidance have been developed for engagement performance and reporting. 2.49 The practitioner has no responsibility to perform any procedures regarding the subject matter or assertion after the date of the practitioner’s report. Nevertheless, the practitioner should respond appropriately to facts that become known to the practitioner after the date of the practitioner’s report that, had they been known to the practitioner at that date, may have caused the practitioner to revise the practitioner’s report. (Ref: par. 2.A56–2.A57 )	2.A56 Subsequent to the date of the practitioner’s report, the practitioner may become aware of facts that, had they been known to the practitioner at that date, may have caused the practitioner to revise the practitioner’s report. In such circumstances, the practitioner undertakes to determine whether the facts existed at the date of the practitioner’s report and, if so, whether persons are currently using or likely to use the practitioners’ report and related subject matter or assertion who would attach importance to these facts. This may include discussing the matter with the appropriate party(ies) and requesting the appropriate party(ies)’s cooperation in whatever investigation or further action that may be necessary. The specific actions to be taken in a particular case by the appropriate party(ies) and the practitioner may vary with the circumstances. Consideration may be given to, among other things, the time elapsed since the date of the practitioner’s report and whether issuance of a subsequent report is imminent. The practitioner may need to perform additional procedures deemed necessary to determine whether the subject matter or assertion needs revision and whether the previously issued report continues to be appropriate. (Ref: par. 2.49) 2.A57 Depending on the circumstances, the practitioner may determine that notification of the situation by the appropriate party(ies) to persons who are currently using or likely to use the practitioners’ report who would attach importance to the facts is necessary. This may be the case, for example, when <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a. the practitioner’s report is not to be relied upon because the subject matter or assertion needs revision or the practitioner is unable to determine whether revision is necessary;<sup>4,7</sup> and</li> <li>b. issuance of a subsequent report is not imminent.</li> </ul> If the appropriate party(ies) failed to take the necessary steps to prevent reliance on the practitioner’s report, the practitioner’s course of action depends upon the practitioner’s legal and ethical rights and obligations. Consequently, the practitioner may consider it appropriate to seek legal advice prior to making any disclosure of the situation. Disclosure of the situation directly by the practitioner may include a description of the nature of the matter and of its effect on the subject matter or assertion and the practitioner’s report, avoiding

(Ref: par. 2.49) Written Representations  2.A58 Written confirmation of oral representations reduces the possibility of misunderstandings between the practitioner and the responsible party. The person(s) from whom the practitioner requests written representations is ordinarily a member of senior management or those charged with governance depending on, for example, the management and governance structure of the responsible party(ies), which may vary by entity, reflecting influences such as size and ownership characteristics. (Ref: par. 2.50) 2.A59 Representations by the responsible party cannot replace other evidence the practitioner could reasonably expect to be available. Although written representations provide necessary evidence, they do not provide sufficient appropriate evidence on their own about any of the matters with which they deal. Furthermore, the fact that the practitioner has received reliable written representations does not affect the nature or extent of other evidence that the practitioner obtains. (Ref: par. 2.50) 2.A60 A discussion of what is considered a material effect on the subject matter or assertion may be included explicitly in the representation letter in qualitative or quantitative terms. If on reading that other information, in the practitioner’s professional judgment a. a material inconsistency between that other information and the subject matter, assertion, or the examination report exists; or b. a material misstatement of fact exists in that other information, the subject matter, assertion, or the examination report; the practitioner should discuss the matter with the responsible party and take further action as appropriate. (Ref: par. 2.A65–2.A66)	Other Information  2.A65 Further actions that may be appropriate if the practitioner identifies a material inconsistency or becomes aware of a material misstatement of fact include, for example, the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Requesting the appropriate party(ies) to consult with a qualified third party, such as the appropriate party(ies)’s legal counsel</li> <li>• Obtaining legal advice about the consequences of different courses of action</li> <li>• If required or permissible, communicating with third parties (for example, a regulator)</li> <li>• Describing the material inconsistency in the examination report</li> <li>• Withdrawing from the engagement, when withdrawal is possible under applicable laws or regulations</li> </ul> (Ref: par. 2.57) 2.A66 Other information does not include information contained on the appropriate party(ies)’s website. In forming that opinion, the practitioner should evaluate <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a. the practitioner’s conclusion regarding the sufficiency and appropriateness of evidence obtained; and (Ref: par. 2.A69)</li> <li>b. whether uncorrected misstatements are material, individually or in aggregate. (Ref: par. 2.58) Forming the Opinion  2.A69 The practitioner’s professional judgment regarding what constitutes sufficient appropriate evidence is influenced by such factors as the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The significance of a potential misstatement and the likelihood that it will have a material effect, individually or aggregated with other potential misstatements, on the subject matter or assertion</li> <li>• The effectiveness of the responsible party’s responses to address the known risks</li> <li>• The experience gained during previous examination or review engagements with respect to similar potential misstatements</li> <li>• The results of procedures performed, including whether such procedures identified specific misstatements</li> <li>• The source and reliability of the available information</li> <li>• The persuasiveness of the evidence</li> <li>• The practitioner’s understanding of the responsible party and its environment</li> </ul> (Ref: par. 2.59a) 2.A70 An examination engagement is a cumulative and iterative process. As the practitioner performs planned procedures, the evidence obtained may cause the practitioner to change the nature, timing, or extent of other planned procedures. (Ref: par. 2.A73)	Preparing the Report  2.A71 Oral and other forms of expressing an opinion can be misunderstood without the support of a written report. For this reason, the practitioner may not report orally or by use of symbols (such as a web seal) under the attestation standards without also providing a written report that is readily available whenever the oral report is provided or the symbol is used. For example, a symbol could be hyperlinked to a written examination report on the Internet. (Ref: par. 2.60) 2.A72 This chapter does not require a standardized format for reporting on all examination engagements. - b. Circumstances relating to the nature or timing of the practitioner's work. For example, a physical process that the practitioner considers necessary to observe may have occurred before the practitioner's engagement.
- c. Limitations imposed by the responsible party or the engaging party on the practitioner that, for example, may prevent the practitioner from performing a procedure that the practitioner considers necessary in the circumstances. 2.70 When the practitioner expresses a qualified opinion due to a material misstatement of the subject matter, the practitioner should state that, in the practitioner’s opinion, except for the effects of the matter(s) giving rise to the modification, the subject matter is presented in accordance with [or based on] the criteria, in all material respects. When the modification arises from an inability to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence, the practitioner should use the corresponding phrase "except for the possible effects of the matter(s) ..." for the modified opinion. 2.71 The practitioner should express an adverse opinion when the practitioner, having obtained sufficient appropriate evidence, concludes that misstatements, individually or in the aggregate, are both material and pervasive to the subject matter. Further, paragraph 2.56a requires that the examination report in these circumstances contain an alert paragraph that restricts the use of the report to the engaging party. (Ref: par. 2.69) 2.A103 The practitioner’s decision to provide a qualified opinion, disclaim an opinion, or withdraw from the engagement because of a scope limitation depends on an assessment of the effect of the omitted procedure(s) on the practitioner’s ability to express an opinion. Exhibit—Illustrative Examination Reports

The illustrative examination reports in this exhibit meet the applicable reporting requirements in paragraphs 2.60–2.82. A practitioner may use alternative language in drafting an examination report, provided that the language meets the applicable requirements in paragraphs 2.60–2.82. The criteria for evaluating the subject matter in examples 1–3 and 5–6 have been determined by the practitioner to be suitable and available to all report users; therefore, these reports may be for general use. The criteria for evaluating the subject matter in example 4 are suitable but available only to specified parties; therefore, use of this report is restricted to the specified parties who either participated in the establishment of the criteria, or can be presumed to have an adequate understanding of the criteria. (See paragraph 2.64 for the information to be included in a separate report paragraph that contains an alert that restricts the use of the report and paragraph 2.65 for the contents of that paragraph when the engagement is also performed in accordance with Government Auditing Standards.)

Example 1—Examination Report on Subject Matter; Unmodified Opinion

The following is an illustrative report for an examination engagement in which the practitioner has examined the subject matter and is reporting on the subject matter.

Independent Accountant’s Report

[Appropriate Addressee]

We have examined [identify the subject matter, for example, the accompanying schedule of investment returns of XYZ Company for the year ended December 31, 20XX]. We have examined management's of XYZ Company's assertion that [identify the assertion, ~~which includes~~ the subject matter and the criteria, for example, the accompanying schedule of investment returns of XYZ Company for the year ended December 31, 20XX, is presented in accordance with [or based on] the ABC criteria set forth in Note 1]. ### Example 5—Examination Report on Subject Matter; Qualified Opinion

The following is an illustrative report for an examination engagement in which the practitioner expresses a qualified opinion because conditions exist that, individually or in combination, result in one or more material but not pervasive misstatements of the subject matter (or, in certain engagements, deviations from, exceptions to, or instances of noncompliance with) the criteria.
