Upcoming IAASB Quality Management Webcasts

We interrupt your regularly scheduled busy season responsibilities with an important announcement! Seriously, we know you are swamped, but in case you can carve out the time, we thought you should be aware of three upcoming webcasts.

The International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) has issued new exposure drafts on Quality Management, which will ultimately impact the AICPA's Quality Control Standards. The IAASB will offer three free webcasts covering the important aspects of its recent exposure drafts, which are open for comment until July 1, 2019.

- The first webcast, March 28, 2019 from 7am – 9am ET, will introduce the proposed quality management standards and will provide a deep dive on the firm's risk assessment process covered in ED-ISQM 1.
- The second webcast, April 25, 2019 from 7am – 9am ET, will delve into governance and leadership, information and communication, monitoring and remediation and networks and service providers, which are also covered in ED-ISQM 1.
- The final webcast, May 7, 2019 from 7am – 9am ET, will provide overviews of ED-ISQM 2, which addresses engagement quality reviews, and ED-ISA 220 \(Revised\), which addresses quality management for audit engagements.

Attending these webcasts is a great way to learn about the proposed standards and to address your questions. Click on any link above to register or share with your peer review clients, if they may be interested!

All the webcasts will be recorded and posted here: www.iaasb.org/quality-management.

Sincerely,

The Peer Review Team
