Agenda Item 1C

Proposed Standard “Compilation of Prospective Financial Information”

Introduction, Effective Date, Objective, Definitions, and Requirements Paragraphs	Application and Other Explanatory Material
Introduction
1. This section contains performance and reporting requirements and application guidance for accountants engaged to perform a compilation engagement on prospective financial information.
2. Prospective financial information can take the form of prospective financial statements (full presentations) or partial presentations.
3. The AICPA Guide Prospective Financial Information (the Guide) provides comprehensive guidance regarding prospective financial information. Chapter 6, “Preparation Guidelines,” chapter 7, “reasonably Objective Basis,” chapter 8, “Presentation Guidelines,” and chapter 9, “Illustrative Prospective Financial Statements,” of the Guide establish the preparation and presentation guidelines for financial forecasts and financial projections. The Guide also includes information about the types and uses of prospective financial information and interpretive guidance for applying the material in this section.

Effective Date
4. This section is effective for compilation reports on prospective financial information dated on or after May 1, 2017.
Objective	Objective (Ref: par. 5)
5. The objective of the accountant in a compilation of prospective financial information is to apply accounting and financial reporting expertise to assist the responsible party in the presentation of prospective financial information and report in accordance with this section without undertaking to obtain or provide any assurance on the (Ref: par. A1) a. prospective financial information or b. assumptions underlying the prospective financial information	A1. During the course of the compilation engagement, the accountant may assist the responsible party in identifying assumptions or gathering relevant information.
Definitions	Definitions (Ref: par. 6, 13, and 17g(1))
6. For the purposes of this section, the following definitions apply. Entity. Any unit, existing or to be formed, for which financial statements could be prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles or special purpose frameworks. For example, an entity can be an	A2. The term entity is used elsewhere in SSARSs. However, the defini-

individual, partnership, corporation, trust, estate, association, or governmental unit. (Ref: par. A2)

Financial forecast. Prospective financial statements that present, to the best of the responsible party’s knowledge and belief, an entity’s expected financial position, results of operations, and cash flows. A financial forecast is based on the responsible party’s assumptions reflecting conditions it expects to exist and the course of action it expects to take. A financial forecast may be expressed in specific monetary amounts as a single-point estimate of forecasted results or as a range, where the responsible party selects key assumptions to form a range within which it reasonably expects, to the best of its knowledge and belief, the item or items subject to the assumptions to actually fall. If a forecast contains a range, the range is not selected in a biased or misleading manner—for example, a range in which one end is significantly less expected than the other. (Ref: par. A3-A4)

Financial projection. Prospective financial statements that present, to the best of the responsible party’s knowledge and belief, given one or more hypothetical assumptions, an entity’s expected financial position, results of operations, and cash flows. A financial projection is sometimes prepared to present one or more hypothetical courses of action for evaluation, as in response to a question that begins, for instance, “What would happen if...?” A financial projection is based on the responsible party’s assumptions reflecting conditions it expects would exist and the course of action it expects would be taken, given one or more hypothetical assumptions. A projection, like a forecast, may contain a range. (Ref: par. A3-A5)

Application and Other Explanatory Material

tion of the term entity in paragraph 6 is applicable only to this section.

A3. As indicated in paragraphs 4.02-4.05 of the Guide, prospective financial statements are for either general use or limited use. General use of prospective financial statements refers to the use of the statements by persons with whom the responsible party is not negotiating directly—for example, in an offering statement of an entity’s debt or equity interests. Because recipients of prospective financial statements distributed for general use are unable to ask the responsible party directly about the presentation, the presentation most useful to them is one that portrays, to the best of the responsible party’s knowledge and belief, the expected results. Thus, only a financial forecast is appropriate for general use.

A4. Limited use of prospective financial statements refers to the use of prospective financial statements by the responsible party alone or by the responsible party and third parties with whom the responsible party is negotiating directly. Examples include use in negotiations for a bank loan, submission to a regulatory agency, and use solely within the entity. Third-party recipients of prospective financial statements intended for limited use can ask questions of the responsible party and negotiate terms directly with it. Any type of prospective financial statements that would be useful in the circumstances would normally be appropriate for limited use. Thus, the presentation may be a financial forecast or a financial projection.

Guide. The AICPA Guide Prospective Financial Information.

Hypothetical assumption. An assumption used in a financial projection or in a partial presentation of projected information to present a condition or course of action that is not necessarily expected to occur, but is consistent with the purpose of the projection.

Key factors. The significant matters on which an entity’s future results are expected to depend. Such factors are basic to the entity’s operations and thus encompass matters that affect, among other things, the entity’s sources of revenue, production, service, and financing activities. Key factors serve as a foundation for prospective financial information and are the bases for the assumptions.

Partial presentation. A presentation of prospective financial information that excludes one or more of the applicable items required for full presentations of prospective financial statements as set forth in chapter 8 of the Guide. (Ref: par. A6)

Presentation guidelines. The criteria for the presentation and disclosure of prospective financial information. (Ref: par. A7)

Prospective financial information. Any financial information about the future. The information may be presented as complete financial statements or limited to one or more elements, items, or accounts.

Prospective financial statements. Either financial forecasts or financial

A5. The Guide notes that in a financial projection, the responsible party need not have a reasonably objective basis for the hypothetical assumptions, but generally, as the number or significance of the hypothetical assumptions increases, the less likely that it is appropriate for the responsible party to present a financial projection.

A6. Paragraph 4.06 of the Guide states that a partial presentation is not ordinarily appropriate for general use.

A7. Chapter 8 of the Guide contains the guidelines for the presentation and disclosure of prospective financial information.

A8. Only a full presentation (as opposed to a partial presentation) is con-

Although prospective financial statements may cover a period that has partially expired, statements for periods that have completely expired are not considered to be prospective financial statements. Pro forma financial statements and partial presentations are not considered to be prospective financial statements. (Ref: par. A8-A9) Responsible party. The responsible party usually is management but it can be persons outside the entity who currently do not have the authority to direct operations (for example, a party considering acquiring the entity).	sidered prospective financial statements. A full presentation that is summarized or condensed is still considered prospective financial statements. A9. The objective of pro forma financial information is to show what the significant effects on the historical financial statements might have been had a consummated or proposed transaction or event occurred at an earlier date. Although the transaction in question might be prospective, this section does not apply to such presentations because they are essentially historical financial statements and do not purport to be prospective financial statements. Requirements
General Principles for Compilations of Prospective Financial Information
7. In addition to complying with this section, an accountant is required to comply with AR-C section 60, General Principles for Engagements Performed in Accordance with Statements on Standards for Accounting and Review Services , adapted as necessary.
Independence	Independence (Ref: par. 8)
8. In a compilation of prospective financial information, the accountant must determine whether the accountant is independent of the entity. (Ref: par. A10)	A10. The interpretations of the “Independence Rule” (ET sec. 1.200.001) of the AICPA Code of Professional Conduct provide authoritative guidance with respect to independence. It is in the public interest and, therefore, required by this section, that the accountant modify the accountant’s compilation report when the accountant is not independent of the entity whose prospective financial information is the subject of the compilation engagement. The

	AICPA Code of Professional Conduct also defines independence as consisting of two elements, independence of mind and independence in appearance. Independence enhances the accountant’s ability to act with integrity and be objective. Independence implies an impartiality that recognizes an obligation to be fair not only to the responsible party but also to users of the prospective financial information, who may rely upon the accountant’s compilation report. In the absence of an interpretation of the “Independence Rule” that addresses a particular relationship or circumstance, a member should apply the “Conceptual Framework for Independence” interpretation (ET sec. 1.210.010).
Acceptance and Continuance of Client Relationships	Acceptance and Continuance of Client Relationships (Ref: par. 9)
9. Because a financial projection is not appropriate for general use, an accountant should not permit the use of the accountant’s name in conjunction with a financial projection that the accountant has reason to believe will be used by those who will not be negotiating directly with the responsible party – for example, in an offering statement of an entity’s debt or equity interests, unless the projection is used to supplement a financial forecast for a period covered by the forecast. 10. The summary of significant assumptions is essential to the user’s understanding of prospective financial information. Accordingly, the accountant should not perform a compilation engagement on: a. prospective financial information that exclude disclosure of the summary of significant assumptions, or

- b. a financial projection that excludes either (a) an identification of the hypothetical assumptions or (b) a description of the limitations on the usefulness of the presentation.

11. As a condition for accepting an engagement to perform a compilation with respect to an entity’s prospective financial information, in addition to the requirements in paragraph .25 of AR-C section 60, adapted as necessary, the accountant should obtain the agreement of the responsible party that it acknowledges and understands its responsibility:

- a. for the preparation and fair presentation of prospective financial information in conformity with guidelines for presentations of prospective financial information established by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, and the underlying assumptions. (Ref: par. A12)
- b. to obtain the accountant’s permission prior to including the accountant’s compilation report in any document containing the prospective financial information that indicates that the entity’s accountant has performed a compilation engagement on such prospective financial information.

A12. A compilation in accordance with SSARSs is conducted on the premise that the responsible party has acknowledged and understands that it has the responsibility set out in paragraph .25c of AR-C section 60. The preparation of prospective financial information, in whole or in part, is a nonattest service subject to the provisions of the “Nonattest Services” subtopic of the “Independence Rule” (AICPA, Professional Standards, ET section 1.295). To avoid misunderstanding, agreement is reached with the responsible party that it acknowledges and understands that it has such responsibilities as part of agreeing and documenting the terms of the compilation engagement as required by paragraphs 13-15.

12. If the accountant is not satisfied about any of the matters set out in paragraph .25 of AR-C section 60 or paragraph .11 of this section as preconditions for accepting a compilation engagement with respect to prospective financial information, the accountant should discuss the matter with the responsible party. If changes cannot be made to satisfy the accountant about those matters, the accountant should not accept the proposed compilation engagement.

Agreement on Engagement Terms

Agreement on Engagement Terms (Ref: par. 11)

13. The accountant should agree upon the terms of the engagement with the responsible party. The agreed-upon terms of the engagement should be documented in an engagement letter or other suitable form of written agreement and should include the following: (Ref: par. -A13-A14 and A17)

.A13 Both the responsible party and the accountant have an interest in documenting the terms of the engagement before the commencement of the engagement to help avoid misunderstandings with respect to the engagement. For example, it reduces the risk that the responsible party may inappropriately rely on or expect the accountant to protect it against certain risks or perform certain functions, including those that are the responsible party’s responsibility.

a. The objective of the engagement

.A14 A contract is another suitable form of written communication. The understanding with the responsible party regarding the services to be performed for a compilation engagement on prospective financial information is required by paragraph 13 to be in a documented form, and, accordingly, an oral understanding is insufficient. An engagement letter is the most common and usually the most convenient method for documenting the understanding with the responsible party regarding the services to be performed for a compilation engagement on prospective financial information.

A15. The responsibilities of the responsible party are set forth in paragraph .25c of AR-C section 60 and in paragraph 11 of this section. When a third party has contracted for a compilation of prospective financial information, obtaining agreement on the responsibilities of the responsible party is necessary in order to establish that the preconditions for a compilation are present.

A16. Because recipients of prospective financial information distributed for general use are unable to ask the responsible party directly about the presentation, the presentation most useful to them is one that portrays, to the best of the responsible party’s knowledge and belief, the expected results. (2) for entities to be formed or that have not commenced operations, specialized industry accounting principles used, if any, are different than those typically used in the industry, inquire as to how the responsible party determined that the appropriate accounting principles were used in the preparation of the prospective financial information in accordance with paragraphs 6.15-6.19 of the Guide. (Ref: par. A18)

A18. In accordance with the AICPA presentation guidelines, the accounting principles used in a financial projection need not be those expected to be used in the historical financial statements for the prospective period if the use of a different principle is consistent with the purpose of the presentation.

A19. The accountant is not required to obtain or review documentation supporting the assumptions in order to determine whether the responsible party has a reasonably objective basis for the forecast. Rather, this consideration would be a factor in his or her consideration about whether the

- d.* In a compilation of a projection, consider that as the number or significance (or both) of hypothetical assumptions increases, whether it is appropriate for the responsible party to present a financial projection. (Ref: par. A21)
- e.* Inquire about how the responsible party identifies the key factors and develops its assumptions.
- f.* List, or obtain a list, of the responsible party's significant assumptions providing the basis for the prospective financial information and consider whether there are any obvious omissions in light of the key factors upon which the prospective results of the entity appear to depend.
- g.* Consider whether there appear to be any obvious internal inconsistencies in the assumptions.
- h.* Consider whether the mathematical computations that translate the assumptions into the prospective financial information are appropriate.
- i.* Read the prospective financial information, including the summary of significant assumptions, and consider whether presentation would be misleading.

A20. Chapter 7 of the Guide provides guidance on the concept of a reasonably objective basis.

A21. There need not be a reasonably objective basis for the hypothetical assumptions in a projection as long as they are consistent with the expected purpose and use of the projection.

appears to be presented in conformity with the AICPA presentation guidelines for prospective financial information (Ref: par. A7).

(2) the prospective financial information, including the summary of significant assumptions, appears to be appropriate in relation to

(a) the accountant's knowledge of the entity and its industry.

(b) if the prospective financial information is a forecast, the expected conditions and course of action in the prospective period.

(c) if the prospective financial information is a projection, the accountant should consider whether the projection appears to be appropriate in relation to the purpose of the presentation.

j. If a significant part of the prospective period has expired, inquire about the results of operations or significant portions of the operations (such as sources of revenue) and significant changes in financial position, and consider their effect in relation to the prospective financial information. If historical financial statements have been prepared for the expired portion of the period, the accountant should read such statements and consider those results in relation to the prospective financial information.

- k. Consider, after applying the preceding procedures, whether the accountant has received representations or other information that appear to be obviously inappropriate, incomplete, inconsistent, or otherwise misleading. If the accountant believes the presentation is obviously inappropriate, incomplete, inconsistent, or otherwise misleading, the accountant should attempt to obtain additional or revised information. If such information is not received, the accountant should withdraw from the compilation engagement. (Ref: par. A22)

A22. The omission of disclosures, other than those relating to significant assumptions, would not require the accountant to withdraw.

Written Representations

Written Representations (Ref: par. 18, 20a and 21a)

18. The accountant should request written representations from the responsible party for all compilations of prospective financial information. (Ref: par. A23-A24)

A23. A representation letter is the most common, and usually the most convenient, method for obtaining written representations for compilations of prospective financial information. Oral representations are insufficient.

A24. Illustrative examples of representation letters for compilations of prospective financial information are presented in Exhibit B, “Illustrative Representation Letters.”

19. The representations should be signed by the responsible party at the highest level of authority who the accountant believes is responsible for and knowledgeable, directly or through others, about matters covered by the representations.

20. The date of the written representations should be as of the date of the accountant’s compilation report on the prospective financial information.

21. If the prospective financial information is a forecast, the accountant should request the responsible party to provide written representations stating that

a. the financial forecast presents the responsible party’s assumptions and, to the best of the responsible party's knowledge and belief, the expected financial position, results of operations, and cash flows for the forecast period in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework expected to be used during the forecast period. If the applicable financial reporting framework or the accounting principles used are different than those used in the preparation of the historical financial statements or expected to be used during the forecast period, that the accounting principles used in the preparation of the forecast are appropriate and, if applicable, disclosed in the forecast in accordance with paragraph 8.15 of the Guide. e. the responsible party has made available to the accountant all significant information, including key factors, that the responsible party believes is relevant to the forecast.

To minimize the possibility that a user of the prospective financial information may infer an unintended level of reliance on the prospective financial information, the accountant may request that the responsible party include a reference on each page of the prospective financial information to the accountant’s written report. An example of such a reference to the accountant’s written report included on each page of the prospective financial information is “See Accountant’s Report” or “See Accountant’s Compilation Report.”

work used, the accountant should disclose the financial reporting framework used in the accountant’s compilation report.

Partial Presentations

Partial Presentations (Ref: par. 35-36)

35. When performing a compilation on a partial presentation, the accountant should give appropriate consideration to whether key factors affecting elements, accounts, or items that are interrelated with those in the partial presentation have been considered, including key factors that may not necessarily be obvious to the reader of a partial presentation (for example, productive capacity relative to a sales forecast), and whether all significant assumptions have been disclosed. (Ref: par. A36-A37)

A36. Chapter 23 of the Guide addresses partial presentations.

A37. The accountant’s procedures on a partial presentation may be affected by the nature of the information presented. Many elements of prospective financial information are interrelated. The accountant may find it necessary for the scope of a compilation of some partial presentations to be similar to that for a compilation of a full presentation of prospective financial statements. For example, the scope of the accountant’s procedures when the accountant performs a compilation on forecasted results of operations (a partial presentation) would likely be similar to that of procedures used for the compilation of a full presentation of prospective financial statements because the accountant would most likely need to consider the interrelationships of all accounts in the compilation of results of operations.

36. Compilation reports on partial presentations of both forecasted and projected financial information should include a description of any limitations on the usefulness of the presentation. (Ref: par. A38)

A38. Illustrative examples of accountant’s compilation reports on partial presentations are presented in exhibit C, “Illustrative Examples of Accountant’s Compilation Reports on Prospective Financial Information”.

The illustrative engagement letters in this exhibit are intended as illustrations that may be used in conjunction with the considerations outlined in Statements on Standards for Accounting and Review Services. The engagement letter will vary according to individual requirements and circumstances. The accountant may seek legal advice about whether a proposed letter is suitable.

Illustration 1—An Engagement Letter for a Compilation of a Financial Forecast

Circumstances include the following:

- The accountant will prepare, as a nonattest service, the financial forecast and perform a compilation engagement on the financial forecast the accountant prepared
- The financial forecast is presented in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America expected to be used during the forecast period, which are consistent with the principles used in preparing the historical financial statements
- The financial forecast is not summarized.
- The accountant expects that his or her independence will not be impaired
- Management is the responsible party. If the responsible party is other than management, the references to management would generally be replaced with the name of the party who assumes responsibility for the assumptions.

To the appropriate representative of ABC Company:¹

You² have requested that we prepare the financial forecast of ABC Company (the Company), which comprise the forecasted balance sheet as of December 31, 20XX, and the related forecasted statements of income, changes in stockholders’ equity, and cash flows, and summaries of significant assumptions and accounting policies for the year then ending and perform a compilation engagement with respect to that financial forecast. We are pleased to confirm our acceptance and our understanding of this engagement by means of this letter.

¹ The addresses and references in the engagement letter would be those that are appropriate in the circumstances of the compilation of prospective financial statements, including the relevant jurisdiction. It is important to refer to the appropriate persons.

² Throughout this engagement letter, references to you, we, us, management, and accountant would be used or amended as appropriate in the circumstances. If the responsible party is other than management, the references to management would generally be replaced with the name of the party who assumes responsibility for the assumptions.

A financial forecast presents, to the best of management’s knowledge and belief, the Company’s expected financial position, results of operations, and cash flows for the forecast period. It is based on management’s assumptions, reflecting conditions it expects to exist and the course of action it expects to take during the forecast period.

Our Responsibilities

The objective of our engagement is to

- a. prepare the financial forecast in accordance with the guidelines for presentation of a financial forecast established by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA), and contained in the AICPA Guide, Prospective Financial Information, based on your assumptions³ and
- b. perform a compilation engagement on the financial forecast we prepared in which we will apply accounting and financial reporting expertise to assist you in the presentation of the financial forecast and report without undertaking to obtain or provide any assurance
 - i. that there are no material modifications that should be made to the financial forecast in order for it to be in presented in accordance with AICPA presentation guidelines or
 - ii. on the assumptions underlying the financial forecast

We will conduct our engagement in accordance with Statements on Standards for Accounting and Review Services (SSARSs) promulgated by the Accounting and Review Services Committee of the AICPA and comply with the AICPA’s Code of Professional Conduct, including the ethical principles of integrity, objectivity, professional competence, and due care.

We are not required to, and will not, verify the accuracy or completeness of the information you will provide to us for the engagement or otherwise gather evidence for the purpose of expressing an opinion or a conclusion. Accordingly, we will not express an opinion or provide any assurance on the achievability of the forecast or the reasonableness of the underlying assumptions.

³ If the presentation is to be summarized as illustrated in Exhibit 9-2 of the AICPA Guide, Prospective Financial Information, this sentence might read, “The objective of our engagement is to prepare the summarized financial forecast in accordance with the guidelines for presentation of a financial forecast established by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants based on your assumptions...”

Our engagement cannot be relied upon to identify or disclose any prospective financial information misstatements, including those caused by fraud or error, or to identify or disclose any wrongdoing within the Company or noncompliance with laws and regulations.

Management Responsibilities

The engagement to be performed is conducted on the basis that management acknowledges and understands that our role is to prepare the financial forecast in accordance with the guidelines for presentation of a financial forecast established by the AICPA, and contained in the AICPA Guide, Prospective Financial Information, based on your assumptions and to perform a compilation engagement on the financial forecast we prepared. Management has the following overall responsibilities that are fundamental to our undertaking the engagement in accordance with SSARSs:

- a. For the preparation and fair presentation of the financial forecast in conformity with guidelines for presentations of a financial forecast established by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and contained in the AICPA Guide, Prospective Financial Information, and the selection of accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America as the applicable financial reporting framework
- b. The prevention and detection of fraud
- c. To ensure that the Company complies with the laws and regulations applicable to its activities
- d. Representations about its plans and expectations and for disclosure of significant information that might affect the ultimate realization of the forecasted results
- e. The accuracy and completeness of the records, documents, explanations, and other information, including significant judgments, you provide to us for the engagement
- f. To provide us with:
 - i. Assumptions that are appropriate for the forecast,
 - ii. Documentation, and other related information that is relevant to the preparation and presentation of the financial forecast,
 - iii. Additional information that may be requested for the purpose of the preparation of the financial forecast,
 - iv. Unrestricted access to persons within the Company of whom we determine necessary to communicate, and

At the conclusion of the engagement, a letter that confirms certain representations made during the engagement. You agree that the financial forecast will include disclosure of the significant assumptions.

ARSC Meeting, October 27-29, 2015

You are also responsible for all management decisions and responsibilities and for designating an individual with suitable skills, knowledge, and experience to oversee our preparation of your financial forecast. You are responsible for evaluating the adequacy and results of the services performed and accepting responsibility for such services.

Our Report

As part of our engagement, we will issue a report that will state that we did not examine the financial forecast and that, accordingly, we do not express an opinion nor provide any assurance on it. Our report will also state that there will usually be differences between the forecasted and actual results, because events and circumstances frequently do not occur as expected, and those differences may be material. There may be circumstances in which the report differs from the expected form and content.

We have no responsibility to update our report for events and circumstances occurring after the date of such report.

If the assumptions provided by management are inappropriate and are not revised to our satisfaction, we will be unable to complete our engagement, and accordingly, we will not issue a report on the forecast.

If management intends to reproduce and publish the forecast and our report thereon, they must be reproduced in their entirety, and both the first and subsequent, corrected drafts of the document containing the forecast and any accompanying material must be submitted to us for approval.
